EIHAB Human Services Expands Its Executive Team

SPRINGFIELD GARDENS, NEW YORK, August 28, 2017 – Queens nonprofit EIHAB Human Services has named Christopher Alexander as its new Assistant Director of Development and Public Relations. He was appointed earlier this summer and will report to CEO/Executive Director Ahmed Hegazy.

In his new role, Alexander will be based in EIHAB's New York office, helping to plan and evaluate the agency's resources and services to ensure they align with public relations goals and strategies. Other responsibilities include helping to oversee programming, fundraising, special events and media relations, as well as relationship building with regulatory agencies and other government entities.

Prior to joining EIHAB, Alexander served as a community representative for a New York State Senator and also worked for NYU Winthrop Hospital. In 2014, he was awarded with Senator Jack Martins' Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Award for his exemplary leadership and his commitment to mentoring youth and improving lives. He is also the founder of the Christopher Alexander Leadership Foundation, which has awarded scholarships to numerous students in New York, and also served on the Executive Committee of the Elmont West Club. Alexander holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science (with a concentration in Public Relations) from Syracuse University.

With a strong work ethic and extensive public relations background, Alexander strives to contribute to EIHAB's success. "I am grateful for this wonderful opportunity and look forward to the excitement and challenges that lie ahead," Alexander said.

Commenting on Alexander's appointment, EIHAB CEO/Executive Director Ahmed Hegazy said, “Christopher’s community spirit and his dedication to helping others make him a tremendous asset to this organization. His outstanding insight and leadership will be instrumental in spreading EIHAB’s mission, as we continue to transform lives and make a difference for the hundreds of individuals we serve.”
